FREE ACTS FOR THE STATE FAIR SELECTED

Really the Best Obtainable—
Experiment Plat a Most Valuable Feature.

Nashville, Tenn., April 29.—The Tennessee State Fair Association a few days ago contracted for the best lot of free amusement features that will appear at any of the Southern fairs in 1908 and as good as will be provided by any fair in the country.

The acts that will be given twice each day out in front of the grandstand have been selected to please every taste. They are: Spellman's Troupe of Seven Performing Bears; James E. Hardy, the champion high-wire walker; Matt Gay, a sensational high-diver; the Kitanzi Troupe of Japanese acrobats; Balno and Shaw in their European novelty burlesque act; the Five Flying Dordens in some remarkable acrobatic feats.

These will of course, be in addition to the free concerts by Weber's Band of Cincinnati and the Nashville Military Band and the brilliant horse-show that will be given every evening.

STATE FAIR EXPERIMENT FARM.

The Southern Agriculturist's 20-acre experiment plat on the State Fair grounds, which will be under the direction of Prof. H. A. Morgan, of the Tennessee Experiment Station this year, has been prepared and seeded in such grasses and leguminous plants as Prof. Morgan advocates for the best interests of Tennessee farmers. Each sub-division of the plat will be placarded so that visitors can tell the exact varieties and a man who can answer such questions will be on hand to assist individual farmers to decide what is best for their own land. This feature alone as a practical demonstration of the value of soil building, etc., by means of proper planting will be worth actually thousands of dollars to the farmers who take advantage of the opportunities thus offered.

The planting is being done so that all varieties will be as near maturity as possible during the week of the Fair—September 21-28.

Airship exhibition Paducah May 2nd, rate $2.60 round trip. Good return May 3rd. Date of sale May 2nd.

KENTUCKY HERO.

Monument to Midshipman
Cruse in Arlington Cemetery.

The parents of midshipman, of Owensboro, have erected a monument to the brave Kentuckian in Arlington cemetery, Washington.

When the explosion occurred on the Georgia last year Cruse was at one gun in the turret and his classmate and personal friend, midshipman Goldthwaite, of Hopkinsville, Ky., was at the other. Goldthwaite was so severely injured that he died two hours later. Cruse, although badly burned, got out of the turret and then, hearing cries for help, deliberately turned and went back badly burned as he was, and gave all assistance in his power. When somebody suggested that he was badly hurt himself he made his famous reply:

"Never mind me, I'm alright; look after those other fellows."

With the other badly burned men he was later taken to the Naval Hospital at Chelsea. He died three days later.

Itch! Itch! Itch!—Scratch! Scratch! Scratch! The more you scratch the worse the itch. Try Doan's Ointment. It cures piles, eczema, any skin itching. All druggists sell it.

A paper of decided importance, especially to the literary world, is that on "The Tragic End of Guy de Maupassant," in the May Lippincott's. Professor Albert Schinz, the author, has had special advantages in getting at the facts connected with the pitiful termination of his distinguished fellow-countryman's career, and the mystery which has heretofore enshrouded it for so many is now satisfactorily cleared up.

Kentucky Veteran.

Nashville, Tenn., April 26.—T. J. Waltham, a Kentuckian, 71 years of age, who served under Forest, died Saturday at the Soldiers' Home. Some time ago, at his own request, he was sent to the insane department of the County Hospital for the Poor and only returned to the Soldiers' Home Thursday. He came to the home from Shelby county.

Amiable Mother—Here, Tommy, is some nice castor oil with a lot of orange juice in it.

Doctor—Now don't give it all to Tommy. Leave some for me.

Tommy (who has had some before)—Doctor's a nice man, ma. Give it all to the doctor.
